

You're Unemployed: There Are Treatment Centers In Kentucky That Can Help

Date: 2 July, 2021 By Robert Alexander Center

Drug addiction is a serious medical condition that can affect people from all backgrounds.

There are all sorts of reasons why people develop addictions and finding the right treatment programs can be difficult if you are in a bad financial situation.

At the Robert Alexander Center, we offer a wide range of tailored drug and alcohol rehabilitation programs to help people beat their addictions.

The Detoxification Process

In more serious cases, patients can be put through a detoxification process to safely remove drugs and alcohol from their system before entering an inpatient program. This involves patients staying at our facility and receiving physical and emotional care to help them deal with the root cause of their addiction issues. When they feel ready to move on, we will create an aftercare program to help them continue with the hard work that they have done during their time at our facility and ensure that they remain sober.

However, if patients do not feel that they need to stay in a full-time facility, they can attend one of our outpatient facilities instead. The outpatient program requires them to attend regular sessions but they can stay in their own home or with friends and family between sessions. Both options can be very effective for those struggling with addiction problems, but many people have questions about funding their stay. A lot of people are not getting the treatment that they need for their addiction issues due to financial constraints, but we can help with this.

Potential Medical Insurance Coverage

The majority of medical insurance policies will cover both our inpatient and outpatient rehabilitation programs. But what if you're unemployed? There are treatment centers in Kentucky that can help.

Financial issues are often tied in with addiction problems. When people are gripped by a serious addiction, their life revolves around drugs or alcohol and other things fall by the wayside. Holding down a job can be very difficult, especially where hard drug addictions are concerned. This means that there are a lot of people out there who are struggling with addiction but do not have access to a comprehensive insurance policy because they have lost their job. Many people in this position assume that they are unable to enter a treatment program, so they feel that there is nowhere to turn for help with their addiction. However, that is not the case.

Dedicated to Helping All People

At the Robert Alexander Center, we understand that addiction is incredibly complicated and has an impact on all areas of a person's life. We are dedicated to helping all people with addiction issues, no matter what their financial situation may be. By helping those that cannot access treatment elsewhere, we hope to break the cycle of addiction and improve lives. If you are unemployed and you need help with your addiction problems, get in touch with us today and we can work with you to find a solution. We can accept people that are unemployed on our treatment programs, so you can get the help that you need, even if you are in a difficult financial position.

Related Posts

What Are The Effects Of Cocaine On Your Heart?

Read More

10 Warning Signs Of Substance Abuse Among College Students

Read More

6 Ways to Break the Chains of Addiction at Drug Treatment Centers

Read More

Our Videos

P: 1-844-328-8406

The Robert Alexander Center for Recovery is a brand new, state of the art addiction treatment center in Kentucky, offering evidence-based treatment for substance abuse.

Navigation

Admissions

Treatment Solutions

Outpatient Programs

Home Detoxification

About Residential Inpatient

Tour Partial Hospitalization

Blog Aftercare & Alumni

Get In Touch

130 Hope Street Mount
Washington, Kentucky 40047

Interpreters Available